

ROOS HOFFMANN

Roos Hoffmann (The Netherlands, 1978) is a multidisciplinary performance artist, working primarily with performances, public interventions, installations and artist books. Roos Hoffmann often invites people at the location in public space or art venues to join her performances. In the performances Interaction and communication are reoccurring themes. Roos Hoffmann was born in Harlingen, in the north of The Netherlands, and currently lives and works in The Hague. She holds a Master Fine Arts, from the Royal Academy of Art, KABK, in The Hague (2008). Also she holds a Master Degree in Philosophy of Arts and Culture, from the University of Maastricht. Her work is shown in several venues, including The Netherlands, Germany, Poland, Italy, Thailand and the U.S.A. Roos Hoffmann was teaching Performance Art at The Royal Academy The Hague, KABK, and she was curator of several exhibitions. Phillip Peters on the work of Roos Hoffmann: "How can we relate to the given context, whether urban or natural-organic? The work is in fact about the question that is always recurring in art; who am I, what is my position, how do I discover and formulate my place in this world?" "The work of Roos Hoffmann offers a simple and modest possibility to (re-)realize your own place and therefore your own identity in this complex world"
