DAVID POWELL

When ideality and reality touch each other then repetition appears. - Søren Kierkegaard

My political activism into free zones comprises speaking at public events across the UK raising awareness about the dangers of free zones coming to communities and residents entrapped within them. The more I got involved with political activism, the more it fed into my studio practice, this has seen material outcomes in my work move away from display into creating 'live environments' that fuse together raw materials, works in progress, and completed works.
