ANA PRISCILA RODRIGUEZ

"Transformation is the ultimate act of creation, it is the essence of the Art making. To be able to transform my reality into a magical realm where real life collides with dreams and nightmares, is what my work is all about..."

My work explores images from the past, transforming vintage material into a new form of existence in my collage work, this comes back strongly in my photographic work which consists in a mixture of digital techniques which evoke nostalgic textures and processes. My distinct self-portraits are a relatable shore for the emotional and psychological catharsis. My images depict a story, a glimpse into someone's world and this visual reality fluctuates between dreams and nightmares, they are images that translate from an inner vision of human experience. The texture in my images is of vital importance, to lose the identity of a photograph and mix it with other media to give the sensation of paint, old paper, text and watercolor gives an extra dimension to this dream world I intent to portray.

The recurring theme of the blindfolded Wanderer seeks to express a feeling of abandonment, lack of destination, confusion, isolation, and an inherent inability to focus on a clear path or a known future. By detaching the link between landscape and historical context or easily-identified occurrences, and by mixing reality and fairytales, Rodriguez and Bar-Joseph carefully construct images that are designed to generate a disorienting sensation and a constant feeling of uncertainty. This sensation is further emphasized by the mediums selected to create the images - Rodriguez's haunting self-portraits extracted from video and Bar-Joseph's high resolution detailed still photographs. All these photographs are presented as a final product in a three minute video, where the concept and visuals become a whole thanks to the genius of Gal Dahan's talent, who has carefully mastered a musical composition combining atmospheric elements with a distressed and yet hauntingly beautiful melody. In a collaborative overseas work, this group of artists ask a series of questions regarding the meaning of hope while living in a transitional period in history, the place of the Romantic Wanderer in a world stripped of the basic feeling of security, and the lack of direction and purpose. If I Were, if I Could will premiere at Beit Ariela in Tel Aviv in Tel Aviv on April 1st, 2022 in an event organized by PHOTO IS:RAEL and Goethe-Institut Israel.
