MANSOUR BAKHTIAR

painting is a thought that is expressed in color and design. If not, it's just some colour and some line. Mansour thinks in exhibitions. His imagery is a mixture of Eastern and Western cultural expressions. He populates his paintings with characters from mythology, history and Christianity as metaphors, which he gives their own non-conformist identity. They are located in indeterminate spaces in which he invites us to come and listen. The walls are covered with gold and decorated in oriental patterns, which Mansour uses deliberately to illuminate the significance of his themes. Kathleen Nieuwenhuisen Art and cultural historian

'In balance' The old surrealistic theory, that Eve seduced Adam to eat from the apple-tree, and by that became God's rival, is the theme of my next exhibition.
In it, Eve is since then looking for Adam to convince him of the necessity to create a Paradise as the one they once were in on earth. So that they Will again be happy together. But Adam seems not to be find him and when, at last, she does find him she discovers him fighting for taking God's place. In these two paintings, 'my' Eve Uses her beauty excessively, and also her power and gunning to convince Adam-as well as God- of her ability. to try and het balance in the Creation. Nonetheless, het greatest fear is: doubt in the existence of Paradise at the time of their creation.
